P3 Partner Showcases Support for Veterans with New Training Program

LPL Financial

P3 has partnered with LPL Financial to support service members, military retirees, and reservists who are looking for their next career opportunity. LPL Financial, a leader in the financial advice industry and the nation's largest independent broker/dealer*, provides independent Financial Advisors and institutions with the technology, research, clearing and compliance services, and practice management programs needed to create thriving practices.

LPL Financial Advisors are a trusted source of independent advice in their local communities. With thousands of LPL Advisors across the nation, Associate Advisors have the opportunity to work in or near their hometown. A priority for the firm is to grow the number of Advisors and bring in diverse perspectives, which is why LPL Financial recently launched the Independent Advisor Institute. The program pairs established LPL Advisors with Associate Advisors who are new to the industry, and the firm is committed to recruiting veterans for this initiative.

The Independent Advisor Institute helps provide a welcoming and engaging onboarding process for new Advisors. Through the program, all Associate Advisors spend their first year as an LPL Financial employee and as a member of an Advisor's local practice. During this time, Associate Advisors receive on-the-job training and complete a curriculum to obtain the required licenses to become an official Advisor. To further support new Advisors with their career transition, the firm provides financial assistance throughout the program.

Currently, there are nationwide opportunities for the Independent Advisor Institute, and more information about the program can be found at http://owl.li/kAow30lKSFJ. In addition to hiring Advisors, the firm is hiring home office staff at its two corporate locations in San Diego, California and near Charlotte, North Carolina. A complete list of the firm's current openings can be found at Careers.LPL.com.

P3 SUCCESS STORIES

The transition from military to civilian life is often more challenging than expected, which is why the P3 team is committed to supporting veterans throughout their entire transition and beyond. P3's Army Readiness Specialist (ARS) in Fort Belvoir, Virginia recently assisted a veteran who was seeking employment nearly two years after he transitioned out of the military.

The veteran was interested in federal employment opportunities, so the ARS helped him tailor his resume for this specific industry. The ARS also connected the veteran with several government organizations. Through the ARS's support, the veteran was offered a General Schedule (GS) position with the U.S. Army Reserve as a Health Readiness Coordinator. The veteran was open to relocating, and he will be moving to Germany for the opportunity.

The veteran has expressed positive sentiments about the P3 program and is extremely grateful for the assistance he received from the ARS!

The P3 Army Readiness Specialist (ARS) who covers Minnesota recently assisted an Army Reserve Soldier with finding a new civilian career opportunity. At the time of outreach, the Soldier was in dire need of finding employment after a potential career opportunity was unexpectedly withdrawn.

The ARS assisted the veteran with resume development, referred him to local career outreach events, and connected him with P3's partner organizations. Within 30 days, the Soldier received two job offers, and the salaries for both positions were nearly two times more than the amount he was offered for the initial opportunity that fell through. After carefully reviewing both offers, the Soldier accepted the position with General Equipment & Supplies, Inc. as a Service Manager.

The Soldier is extremely grateful for the assistance he received from the P3 representative and looks forward to his new career journey!
